

Client Communication Policy

All client-facing communications, including emails and deliverables, must be reviewed by a project lead before sending during an employee's first 90 days. After that period, senior consultants may communicate directly with clients within their engagement scope.